Soul Asylum

The rate of young people under the age of 24 suffering insecurity, paranoia and nervousness has been increased over years. The relationship between people's external surroundings and their psychology inspired this project. The answers of new graduate' security sources, including the shape of father's legs, the smell of fresh tomato, and the sound of mopping the floor were interpreted. The final sculptural installation, 'Soul Asylum' is a combination of plaster cast legs placing on a pink pillow duvet base.
